

In the overall planning concept of a conference room, the distribution of competences and the management culture practised in the company find their direct correspondence.

Impressive effect

Hierarchical structures can be directly represented or relativized by the arrangement of the seats - either through exposed seats for one or more chairmen or the balanced arrangement of all those present around a round table.

CONFERENCE | ROOM

The style and structure of the communication taking place can be controlled by selecting the integrated monitor technology:

Exemplary solutions here would be to equip all workstations with equal rights with complete workstations or, in the opposite direction, to provide screens that only allow centrally presented content to be viewed.

Presentation & Representation

Here, too, monitors and computer technology should be foldable or retractable into room structures or furniture if required, so as not to tie up attention and concentration unintentionally.
